

Caring, citizenship and respect are all characteristics that describe and comprise my little brother. I admire him because he always has kindness in his heart. He always takes responsibility for his actions and tries his best no matter what. He is fun loving and is always willing to help out. He always aims to make our community and world a better place.

My brother is caring because he is always coming up with new ways of doing good in the world. One idea in particular was when he decided to decorate ornaments and sell them. We donated all of that money to soldiers overseas. He worked relentlessly to make posters and decorate each ornament meticulously and with care. My little brother is kind hearted and is always finding other ways to make people happy.

My brother is also a good citizen. He always is looking to find new ways to make people happy. One time for example I was worried about something and he helped me through it on the bus. With every step he takes it ignites a little spark, that grows into a wildfire of ideas. These ideas make the world and community better and happier.

My little brother is also always very respectful. He would never ever do anything to purposely hurt someone's feelings. My brother would not break anything of someone else's. Also my brother would never lie about doing so on accident. One time for example my brother walked into my room and accidentally stepped on one of my crafting tools and broke it. I was gone when he did. Instead of hiding it from me he said sorry and offered to buy a new one. My brother is respectful and treats everyone the same.

Overall my brother is caring, respectful and is a good citizen. My brother is always kind and sweet. He continues to make my family and anyone who meets him happy. He looks for the good in others and brings it out. My little brother will work relentlessly until the whole world is a kinder place. My little brother is the spark that lights the flame of goodness and kindness and I admire him for that.
